Commissioner Abernathy:

In our family we do not allow our children and do not ourselves watch violent television. When children watch violence it affects how they interact and play. To know this you simply have to watch a child after they see karate or any other form of violence.

Please help by limiting the amount of violence shown on television. There is a very limited selection of shows available for children to watch due to violence. Perhaps your action will force the networks to provide shows more suitable for families.

Sincerely,

Tom Wise

Commissioner Adelstein:

I understand the FCC would like input regarding the violence on TV today. I am quite concerned for two basic reasons. Studies I have read show a definite correlation between media violence and violence acted out in children. I don't want my children raised with those inclinations nor do I want them to have an exaggerated fear of a violent America. So we strictly limit the TV our children watch. My children are the first reason.

The second reason is the children in our society that my children interact with and will in the future. Some non-thinking people suggest that if we don't like certain programming then just change the channel or turn off the TV. That only solves half the problem. I don't want my children to be the victims of violence from others who have grown up in a media violent environment. I can't shut their TVs off. I can't change the channels for other families. But my children live in this society and are at risk because of the excessive violence on TV.

I drive a van to pick up kids. I am appalled at the things that 1st and 2nd graders are watching on TV. Sure I don't let my children watch that stuff but obviously their parents do not care. So my children are at risk and the lives of these other little kids are imperiled as well. I have heard them tell me about the scary nightmares from watching TV and so on.

What is true of violence is true of profanity and vulgar speech as well as sexual content in the media.

I challenge you to do something for decency and control the stream of violence and filth that is on our airwaves.

Thanks for reading this.

Sincerely,

Tom Lorimer

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing to you today as centers of influence on what is broadcast over the television. As evidence shows, violence on television contributes to aggressive behavior among children and adults. I implore you as a concerned citizen that something needs to be done to thwart this effort by Hollywood.

I am deeply burdened for each citizen of our country, because this impacts everyone. It is not just a family issue, but an issue of concern for fellow man and his/her well being. I know that you will make an effort to address this issue.

I appreciate your time and service to our country.

I am amazed at the tone of violence on television. It has gotten completely out of hand. We DO NOT watch any sit-coms for their scrips are so incorporated with violence in the form of verbal abuse, physical abuse, demeaning and degrading comments, lack of awe for the human race as shown by the bloody mutilation of bodies and discarding humans as though they were a piece of trash.

I purchase my own DVDs for the violent and sexual trash shown in TV movies either TV produced or Hollywood are an offense to both my mind and body!

Commercials have become worse than regular TV. They are always sexual and violent.. Children should never be allowed to watch TV unsupervised...it's similar to giving them a loaded gun to play with...what parents would do that... Unfortunately, those wishing for a cheap babysitter at the expense of their children's mental health.

Even in baby commercials, there is violence in the form of verbal abuse, rudeness, sexy overtures, etc. etc. etc.

WHEN DOES IT STOP? IT ALWAYS ABOUT THE MONEY...SHOW ME THE MONEY...BUT what about the minds of our future generations.. You can see in the last two generations of children how immoral and violent we as a society has become...the TV and media only care about sensationalism and making money at ANY ONE'S E XPENSE..

Children should never be allowed to watch TV unsupervised...it's similar to giving them a loaded gun to play with...what parents would do that... Unfortunately, those wishing for a cheap babysitter at the expense of their children's mental health.

Even in baby commercials, there is violence in the form of verbal abuse, rudeness, sexy overtures, etc. etc. etc.

WHEN DOES IT STOP? IT ALWAYS ABOUT THE MONEY...SHOW ME THE MONEY...BUT what about the minds of our future generations.. You can see in the last two generations of children how immoral and violent we as a society has become...the TV and media only care about sensationalism and making money at ANY ONE'S EXPENSE..

Sincerely,
